Office

Restricted Spending

SCOTT DUNCAN
Sgt. News Editor
Official Office is working comfortable surplus, to business manager, in thanks to a clear of profit from the of the office.
Official Office, unlike other government offices, works more money than it is of the Executive Council, was given $9,000 this to operate Parnamy, the of the Skyroom Exclusives for the other events for run by the office operated with the money of other events.

The office is sponsored by just generally be of the of variety.
An event pay, Ellison expenses must be fully. "They call me Ellison," he remarked, reports that the office more than last year. Recently the office has for this year.
They saved or earned on applied to another. "If Homecoming in the red, the office been able to sponsor weekends of dances.
Still problems though. The office is stuck bill from the Alumni Association at Homecoming that they did not even grant.

The association wanted to use student funds and asked the office for $1,000 for their part in Homecoming at the first planning meeting of Homecoming chairman.

When they couldn't get clear approval, reports Ellison, they started spending tentatively, and the day before Homecoming they called the office and said, "Here's what we're spending."

Although the students objected, the association said there was no by-law that says outside groups must have express permission of the Social Office to spend ASBYU funds.

There is now. At its last meeting the Executive Council passed a by-law making all requests for funds from the Social Office from non-ASBYU groups impossible without prior approval of the Budget Committee.

Another problem is restricting spending when some groups, such as Food Services, do not want to be tied down by specific requests. "They want some leeway," he said.

In all, the office is concerned with almost $150,000 a year. That is more than five times as much as the second highest-spending office, the Office of Athletics.

Indian Students Must Become Professional—Arturo DeHoyos

Indians need an education not just to make a living, but to make a life," Dr. Arturo DeHoyos, director of the graduate Indian education program, said Tuesday.

Speaking on "The Indian Professional" on the third day of Indian Week, he said the Indian nation could become great only after it developed a professional class.

"BYU is committed to training Indian youth to become Indian professionals," Dr. DeHoyos said. He noted that over 300 Indian students from over 68 tribes in the United States and Canada attend BYU.

Most colleges have not developed programs to help Indians fulfill their potential, he added.

"Professionals are the brain and heart of society," he said.

He added that Indians must attain professions not to make money, but to help the Indian community.

"We must gear our efforts to both the cities and the reservations," he said, noting that 50 per cent of the Indians in the United States live in the cities.

"We must stop Indians in the city from developing into a helpless mass of dependents," he added.

He said reservations are in need of Indian doctors, lawyers, businessmen, and teachers.

"A medical doctor must be a man who loves and cares for the people, understanding their fears and their needs," he said.

"Most of the white doctors on the reservations don't know the spiritual and psychological needs of the people," he added. "To know people, we must suffer with them and live with them."

Teachers on the reservation must know good from evil, he said. They will know this if they "relate to the 'old times' on the reservation," who possess "wisdom unconaminated by materialistic emphasis."

"As reservations become communities, they must rest on order and law," Dr. DeHoyos said, discussing the need for Indian lawyers and judges.

Dr. DeHoyos challenged Indian students to learn with the purpose of helping the Indian community. "Living is faster and easier if you have a purpose, and if that purpose is constructive, it is even easier," he said.

Prof. Talks Of Frontier

Discussing the early Mormon frontier tradition and its influence on American life will be Dr. Donald Atwell Zoll, chairman of the Philosophy and Classics Dept. at the University of Saskatchewan.

His lecture, "Violence and the Frontier Tradition," prepared especially for BYU, will be delivered Feb. 25 at 3 p.m. in 184 Jesse Knight Bldg.

Dr. Zoll will also speak at 1 p.m. in 321 Wilkinson Center on the topic "The Relevance of Political Conservatism." The two lectures are under the co-sponsorship of the Academic Emphasis Committee and the Intercollegiate Studies Institute (the Roundtable).

The author of several books, including "Reason and Rebellion; An Informal History of Political Ideas," "The Twentieth Century Mind," and "Political Leadership: Crisis and Order," Dr. Zoll has been awarded degrees from Knox College, Northwestern University and the University of Saskatchewan. He has previously served as associate professor of philosophy and political science at the University of Saskatchewan.

Permit Deadline Nears For Non-Resident Drivers

All students driving cars licensed out of state must obtain a non-resident permit by March 1. The permits are available in the BYU Security Office, B-66 Administration Bldg., 24 hours a day.

In addition to paying a 50 cent charge for the permit, the student must bring to the Security Office the home state registration or title to the car, proof of safety inspection and the student's activity card. Out of state safety inspections are acceptable.

Students who obtained non-resident permits last fall are reminded that those permits will expire Feb. 28, and a new one must be obtained.

The permit allows full-time students to maintain their license plates from their home states instead of obtaining Utah license plates for their vehicles.

The Editor's Desk

A Free Press

By Roger Gillespie
Acting-Editor-In-Chief

Our present generation has seen the breakdown of many of the standards and social mores cherished by our parents. But in many instances, those who have exerted this pressure for change have gone too far.

"We have our rights," they scream.

What they fail to consider is that the coin of freedom has two sides and the other side is called responsibility.

Nowhere is this more true perhaps, than in the area of mass communications generally and the press particularly. Our entire history has been one of a free press. Article I of the Bill of Rights states that "Congress shall make no law...abridging the freedom...of the press..."

Responsibility

While freedom is granted the journalist, responsibility is not required of him per se (libel, obscenity and other related laws considered). This is the area that has caused consternation to a small degree on this campus and to a larger degree on many others. Freedom is protected by the courts; responsibility, to a large extent, is a self-imposed proposition.

It should go without saying that on a major metropolitan daily it is a self-defeating proposition not to be known as a "responsible" newspaper. Certainly large papers like the TIMES of New York or the TRIBUNE of Chicago would find it impossible to attain the circulation they have if they had not long ago established a reputation of fairness and accuracy.

Such is not the case, however, with most college dailies.

Student journalists, it seems, have a penchant for "climbing on the bandwagon" and adopting a cause so that they singlehandedly might change the world.

Improvement

Seeking improvement is fine. Seeking it through the potent medium of the press is also fine.

Where the difficulty arises is the fact that emotions and opinions are all too often contained in these articles rather than facts. In this sense, the paper becomes the tool of the journalist to "grind his own axe" rather than to report and edit the news fairly.

But whether a journalist is, in fact, objective or subjective in his reporting it seems that he is under constant attack for his actions. A good case in point is contained among today's letters to the editor. Because an editorial did not agree with a particular reader's point of view, he immediately branded it as irresponsible and untrue (A "lie" to quote him).

It should stand as a testimony against the writer that because he failed to check his own information, he himself is guilty of the libel that he hurls upon the staff and editor of THE DAILY UNIVERSE.

Sources Checked

Would it make any difference in his position if he knew that at least four independent sources were checked as to the validity of the comments therein and four days were spent in the writing of it? Even with this attempt to be "responsible" it was phrased "as we understand it."

The point is then, that THE DAILY UNIVERSE stands for responsible journalism.

To insure this responsible journalism, an editorial board has been established. Facts are checked and editorial comments are closely scrutinized to guard against the very thing that this writer has condemned us of. For this reason too, editorials will not be signed, but will come from the editorial board and be a reflection of a consensus of thinking and not simply opinion of one student.

Fair Reporting

A responsible journalist, whether he works on a college paper or a large metropolitan daily, must make sure he does everything that is humanly possible to be fair and unbiased in his news reporting and editing. By the same token, the reader has a responsibility too, in that he must not condemn everything with which he may not particularly agree.

In 1962 The Associated Press printed a booklet for their managing editors and in it contained a capsule definition of their criteria of a good newspaper. Some of the points made regarding responsibility are worth quoting: "Use mature and considered judgment in the public interest at all times. Select, edit and display news on the basis of its significance and its genuine usefulness to the public."

Of course, mistakes will be made. Certainly bad judgment will be exhibited at times. One of the purposes of a campus daily is to serve as a laboratory for future professional journalists. But there is nothing printed that is purposely vindictive or malicious. Mistakes are honest mistakes and if they are made we will be candid in admitting them and trying to rectify them.

The guidelines under which we work could probably best be summarized in a quote from a French publication concerning the ethical responsibilities of the student press: "The student journalist must always endeavor to be impartial and exact in his news reports and must have sufficient facts to back up his public statements. He must be fully conscious of his personal responsibilities for everything he has published." To this end we are striving.

Letters to the Editor

OBEDIENCE

Editor:

The guest editorial in Monday's THE DAILY UNIVERSE was excellent. Brother Wendell Hall in the same issue makes his point well. I venture to say, however, that none of us mere humans have the right to appoint ourselves to be that John the Baptist. It was our God who sent John to bear witness against those who scribbled and pharisees.

Who becomes a law unto himself cannot be sanctified by law. He is in danger, ultimately, of rebelling against God and the duly instituted servants of God. Is not our course clear? Shouldn't we obey the General Authorities of the LDS Church who are at the same time our Board of Trustees? Should we not be less concerned about what we think our rights are than what our duties are? It is not relevant, I believe, whether Christ had a beard and long hair in one day and age. What manner of grooming and dress are the General Authorities inspired to direct us to have in this day and age? We shan't steal from our own peril, whether the dressed an apparently very commendable or of an very minor commandment direct us to do, even with helmets or beads or make we must do, or we risk the Spirit.

Hour, Professions

SLANDER

Editor:

I hope that this letter do the fate of other letters we "broad-minded" editors do I write in response to the Journalism in the editorial when Walter Krosske in BYU, you should have read it dangerous to empty accusations without sufficient facts. Your editorial at Kerner's Neighborhood Teams contains a libel against your entire student body.

The truth is that Kerner people to arm, and in fact not a part of any of his program is intended professional agitators from the people to panic. In that if a not program that people are bearing streets, then the town has to the agitators.

I think whoever wrote and didn't sign it was not and over Mr. Kerner's. I hope that future BYU preceded by adequate results by the way I don't Kerner's program because he has the best solution problem which face our Nation.

Dance Standards Enumerated

Editor:

Nothing new can be said about dress standards that hasn't been said, or about long hair, or beads, or dancing. These philosophies have been gross, I about as fine as heads beating against a wall can grind them. But maybe we can shed a different color of light on an old problem—and it is an old problem. It has probably existed since man.

It's our opportunity to provide a dance program—one that's worth your time and ours. However, there are a few things about BYU's dance program that we should think about again. This concerns specifically, contemporary dances.

In 1963 a letter written by Janice Chandler, then a BYU student, to President McKay stimulated the following reply from the Prophet: "Only parts of his letter are given."

"The enclosed statement of acceptable dancing states that if one concentrates on good dress posture, many dances can be danced in a manner which will meet LDS standards."

I admit that many of the young people of our Church do not have any evil intentions in dancing certain current fad dances. However, we do not think the test of a proper dance is whether the dancers have evil intentions, but whether the dance is of such dignity and propriety that, even to an onlooker, it suggests nothing but style and good grace.

I doubt whether it is possible to dance most of the prevalent fad dances in a manner that will meet LDS standards.

After all, young men and women of our Church should shun even the appearance of evil, and that is why we would very much prefer that you and others avoid the current trend of what, to many of us, appears to be vulgar dancing. There are too many fine things in this world for the young people to engage in without resorting to dances that are questionable.

In the booklet "For The Strength of The Youth," which has the approval and blessing of the First Presidency, the following excerpts pertaining to dancing are given:

"Good Posture—This is the basis for doing all things well in dancing. If one concentrates on good posture, most dances can be danced in a manner which will meet LDS standards."

Dance Postures—When dancing, young people should avoid crouching, slumping over, trying to do a backbend, or having too close a body contact.

Body Movements—Members of the Church should be good dancers and not contortionists. Extreme body movements should be avoided and emphasis should be placed more on styling and clever footwork.

Acceptable Dancing—Dancing

that is suggestive or suggestive is incompatible standards. Avoid all connotations of the bawdy or the lewd. As men of Church, youth should and judgment by acceptable Church standards so that go dancing is always exempt.

Lyrics—Music is never be suggestive but always dignified taste. Style of Singing—Wild singing should be avoided. Loud shouting that goes up to a high emotion never in good taste.

Musical Beat—A is needed, but the extreme. A loud, wist beat is to be avoided, not meet Church standards. Probably everyone we are talking about represent these standards must be an individual live by them. Allport person comes to be respect to be only when he himself hand in declaring it conduct to be desirable make that decision.

Search Extended For Kidnapped Girls
 ALA. — A search for two small sisters kidnapped by two men was extended nationwide today, the FBI said. Officers said the mother of the children is sought for questioning.
 The girls, 3-year-old Tina and 2-year-old Tiffany, were taken at gunpoint Monday by two men who tied up the girls' aunt in her trailer home.
 The FBI quoted the men as saying the father, Alan Cain, owed a gambling debt. Cain commented later, "That's a lot of bunk."

Newsmen Arrested By Laotian Army
 VIENTIANE, Laos — Laotian Army troops today arrested three American newsmen who made their way unannounced to the U.S. military base at Long Cheng. They were later released to a U.S. official.
 The U.S. ambassador to Vientiane, said in a statement that "the American mission has lost any interest in helping Laos whatsoever because of what happened this afternoon." He did not elaborate.

Safer Landings On Moon Devised
 WILMINGTON, Mass. — Massachusetts Institute of Technology space scientists have devised a safer way to land men on the moon for Apollo 13.
 They believe they have come up with a new computer method to avoid the hazard of swirling moon dust that cut off the vision of Charles Conrad Jr. as he landed the Apollo 12 lunar module on the moon.
 The new method was rewritten and tested complex equations used to program the lunar module to give the pilot of the lunar module a chance to call on the computer for help in landing through a dust cloud—even though he had taken over manual control from the computer at the last moment to find a safe landing spot.

Speedster Hackett—Top Athlete

By BOB HUDSON
Asst. Sports Editor

As athlete of the week Hackett will receive a free haircut from the Wilkinson Center Barber Shop and a free pizza from Beth's Pizza House.

This week's winner of the "athlete of the week" award is Paul Hackett. Hackett won the 600 yard dash last Saturday evening with a clocking of 1:10.2, one-half second shy of the NCAA record, in the first annual WAC Indoor track meet. He also ran a 440 in :48.5 on his leg of the second-place mile relay.

Paul, a physical education major from La Brea, Calif., began his track practice early.

"My dad was and is a real nut about the sport. He started me out on weights when I was eight and has been following my progress very closely. He's helped me a lot."

He came to BYU after considering offers from Washington, Oregon, Oregon State and Occidental.

"I was impressed by the program here so I decided that this would be the place for me."

Now a half-miler, Hackett began his career at the Y as a 440 man. He exhibited a great deal of endurance, so last year the coaches moved him into his present event. He did quite well, running a best time of 1:50.3 in his inaugural season.

"I hope to improve this season. Last year I didn't run cross-country. I feel much stronger now."

Paul is now a member of what the distance runners know as the "Big Three." He, Stan and Steve Bergeson constitute the clan and enjoy a friendly rivalry. During the 600 yard race Stan helped him reach his time by giving him splits which he had set up earlier.

During the outdoor season the rivalry will increase since all three will be running the half and there can only be one winner among them in the conference meet instead of three. (Stan won the 1,000 yard run and Steve won the 880 last week end.)

Utah State, Cal. State Nab Berths

The NCAA committee announced the selection of 10 at-large teams to compete in the NCAA regional playoffs.

Utah State and New Mexico State both accepted invitations, however, New Mexico State will go to the Midwest Regionals.

The Aggies of Utah State have a 18-5 record and will travel to Las Cruces this Saturday to do battle with New Mexico State (21-2). The Aggies will compete March 7 here in Provo along with the WAC winner, Big Sky winner (Weber State), and Cal State-Long Beach.

Other selections were made beginning with the eastern team. Included were St. Bonaventure (19-1), Villanova (17-6), Niagara (19-4), Jacksonville (20-1) and Notre Dame (20-5).

In the central section were Houston (20-3) and Marquette (19-3).

The playoffs in the Fieldhouse on March 7 will include two games to be played at 7 p.m. and 9 p.m. Tickets are on sale in the ticket office in the Fieldhouse.

Break the Hate Habit.

Hate Blacks! Hate Whites!
 Hate Jews! Hate Gentiles!
 What sane person needs any of that noise? So how do you turn it off? With love. And all the caring, kindness and consideration that love means. Start today, lover.

Break the hate habit: love your neighbor.

Cookies For Servicemen

Operation Easter Bunny Enlists Aid

Operation Easter Bunny, sponsored by Sigma Delta Omicron, is on again.

Operation Easter Bunny is an effort to send cookies to all Mormon servicemen serving in Vietnam or the Far East who will be attending the LDS Servicemen's conference in Japan. The conference is April 9-12.

Sigma Delta Omicron feels this is a way for students to send a "meaningful Easter greeting to them and let them know that we do care about them."

Tables will be available in the Wilkinson Center and the Smith Family Living Center March 5-6 to collect the cookies.

Each cookie should be individually wrapped in aluminum foil. If saran wrap is used, ends need to be taped together to prevent excessive drying. If bar or square cookies are made, cut them no larger than 1½" x 1" in size.

The cookies will be packed in cans and sealed at the welfare cannery on March 7. Each can, containing one dozen cookies, will also include an Easter greeting.

For each dozen cookies prepared, a greeting should be written personally, including the name and address of the student.

Students interested in packing the cookies and those having any questions should contact Kay Franz at ext. 2147, or Jeanne Hammond at 375-2534.

Belles

Cakes will join the paintings in the Wilkinson Center Art Gallery today as future Belles of the Y display their confectionary talents, each hoping that they will be crowned 1970 Belle of the Y at the 21st dance.

Judges will taste the 75-odd cakes entered by the remaining contestants. They will then choose 30 girls to remain in the contest and participate in the remaining dance, culture and talent contests.

Riot Is 'Experience' For 24 Cougarettes

By LINDA STEWART
Staff Writer

For most BYU students, a riot is only something they've read about. For the 24 Cougarettes who went to Colorado two weeks ago, however, it is a real experience.

"Other people can't understand unless they have participated in a riot themselves. When you see people who hate you, and with no reason, it makes you feel really bad," commented Cougarette Betty Madsen, a junior in Elementary Education from American Fork. "I wasn't really scared, though," she continued, "most of the girls were worried about keeping count and not spoiling the march. It was afterward, when we saw the danger we could have been in, that we were scared."

For Cheryl Holmes, a junior from Burley, Idaho, the incident was "a real experience."

"We sort of expected something. They told us that someone might try to throw things at us. We were prepared for that. We didn't think they'd march on the floor, though."

Pride was the reaction of Jennie Lew, a speech pathology sophomore from Orem.

"I felt proud to be on the floor and that we were from BYU. I wouldn't have traded places with anybody—even with a people protesting against it."

"It just made every harder and smile more great," explained Cheryl, the protestors helped us ourselves more as fun audience was concerned."

Another Cougarette with the trip, Candy Brown Mesa, Ariz., described her as "a great feeling. It was wonderful, we felt it was right there with us, but fear was in my mind finished the march."

The four Cougarettes general student body of State was not at fault.

"The reaction from audience was the best ever had. One lady in the just crying and told us 'just wonderful,'" Cheryl.

"There were just a people who were participating the demonstration," Jess explained. "They even standing ovation of minutes when we were and the songleaders and the student body afterwards and told us they were."

'Prepare Them For Life Eternal'—Elder Richards

Elder LeGrande Richards reminded Mormons of their responsibility in helping the Indian people as he spoke in Devotional assembly Tuesday.

He stated that while the government is beginning to repay what it owes to the Indian through helping to "prepare them for a better life in mortality," it is our responsibility to prepare them for eternal life and exaltation.

Elder Richards is a member of the Council of the Twelve of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints and was recently appointed Chairman of the Church Indian Committee.

"There are millions of descendants of Father Lehi still on this earth," Elder Richards said, adding that "we, as the Church" have to take the record of their forefathers to them. He read several scriptures describing The Book of Mormon as the record of the Indian people.

He commented that The Book of Mormon "ought to be more to them (the Indians) than any other."

"You thrill to see them responding and see what the Gospel can do when we bring it to them and that is our responsibility," Elder Richards stated.

He said there are 17 stakes composed largely "of the descendants of Father Lehi" and "hundreds of Mormon missionaries spending their entire time" to bring the Gospel to them. "Within the next 100 years," Elder Richards said, "this would be one of the greatest movements."

Elder Richards said the spirit of the Lord has influenced the government and the world in their concern for Indians and they are now being offered "educational opportunities all over."

Fourth Stake Offers Cash Prizes

In 'Most Creative Date' Contest

One-hundred dollars in prizes being offered by the BYU Fourth Stake MIA in a creative date contest that requires describing the most creative date you can think of, past, present or future at BYU or elsewhere. Everyone connected with BYU is eligible to enter as often as they wish, except judges and their families.

The contest begins at 8 a.m. March 2 and ends at 5 p.m. March 6. All entries should be deposited in the contest box that will be provided in the Reception Center of the Wilkinson Center beginning next Monday.

Whether your "brainchild" is tailored for one couple or more, the same guidelines hold true. The two categories will be judged separately and prizes amounting to $100 will be offered. They will be awarded separately... $25, $10, $10 and $5.

Judging will be based on the cost involved—the less involved the better, the originality—what thought of it, and the adaptability to present conditions. With each entry please include the following information: 1) name, address and phone number, 2) ward boundaries within which you live, 3) connection with BYU, i.e. student, employee, etc. and 4) whether or not the idea is your very own.

Indian Activities: Banks To Speak

Indian Week activities continue today with a presentation of leadership opportunities for Indian students at BYU, under the direction of Willis Banks, chairman of general curriculum. This will be in the Varsity Theater at 1:10 p.m. and will be followed by a question period.

Films will be shown in the Varsity Theater at 12:10 p.m.

Y Faculty Sinfonietta Presents Worthwhile Musical Experience Of Instrumental Works

By KEITH NORMAN
Universe Music Writer

The BYU Faculty Sinfonietta, conducted by Dr. A. Harold Goodman, Chairman of the Music Department, presented a concert of fairly modern instrumental works Monday night, topped by a performance of Bach's Cantata No. 140.

Beginning the evening's music was Louise Pratt, whose graceful fingers played two lilting harp dances of Debussy. She was accompanied by a string ensemble, who provided an adequate, if not always perfect background. With Debussy's characteristic hints, the soloist succeeded in achieving the ethereal, lustrous effect that the composer intended.

The second number featured a member of the illustrious Nibley family, Richard, who performed a violin solo of his own composition. As suggested by the title, "The Virtuoso Revisited," the work facilitates between emotional nostalgia and aspiring technical virtuosity, which becomes at times a little trite in its attempts to dazzle. But it was played as perhaps only the composer could: arrogantly, exploited to the full, becoming an interesting psychological experience.

Samuel Barber's "Capricorn Concerto" for flute, oboe, trumpet and strings featured Ted Wigton on flute, Darrell Stubbs on oboe, and Newell Dayley, trumpet. The unconventional rhythms, intervals, and harmonies were the more exciting set with the tuneful melodic passages. It is especially exciting when someone can achieve greatness in both musical insight and professional talent as Darrell Stubbs, full-time faculty member, and performer with the Utah Symphony, is doing.

Perhaps the highlight of the rendition of Bach's choral and instrumental work based on the chorale "Awake, a Voice is Calling," were the two duets for soprano and bass with violin and oboe obligatos. Vocal soloists were Margaret Woodard and Clayne Robison, while the instrumental parts were taken by Percy Kalt and Darrell Stubbs respectively. Also featured: Brandt Curtis, tenor. The Chamber Choir, trained by R. Downs, had moments when women's voices were covered by the men and the orchestra in the final setting of the choral almost overwhelming in its power and excitement.

The Music Department is especially commended for a program, which was well-attended most of the audience which the recital hall. It was certainly worthwhile experience for serious music listener.
